

Reference: 094

Type:

Technical Brochures

Title:

Lightning characteristics relevant for electrical engineering: assessment of sensing, recording and mapping requirements in the light of present technological advancements.

Abstracts

Power systems are always exposed to some extent to lightning caused disturbances. Unfortunately, lightning protection design and protection devices do not always provide the desired reduction of damage. Sometimes, the reason is that designs are based on lightning data which are not always properly used, since records show that parameters can present different values at different geographical locations.

More Informations :

File Size:2,7 MB Pages NB:37 Study Committee : 33 (now C4) WG (TF):WG 33.01.02 Year:1995
